

I think that localism is a necessity in todays society. More localism will create better communities, keep us informed of local information that readily affects our life and keeps the community on the same page. With better localized information we will create more knowledge of the readily affectable topics as opposed to the hard to touch on national problems.